He died on 18 Dec 1851 in Bent Creek, Appomattox County, Virginia. He married ELIZABETH WHITE CHICK, daughter of William Chick and Jean Ragland. She was born in 1781<sup>1</sup>.

Chick-Walton-Jones lived 4 miles from Oakville on Bent Creek where crosses Route 615, house built 1810-12 (known as Ida Jones property), came to Buckingham County (now Appomattox) in 1810 from Hanover County.

Appomattox Co, VA 1850 census, in family no. 122 with James C. Walton, his son.

Served in the Buckingham County militia, attaining the rank of Colonel. Succeeded his father-in-law as Bent Creek's largest land owner and chief entrepreneur. He came to hold the county's highest offices. In 1808, he was appointed to the County Court, an office he held continuously until 1845, when as senior in service he became the presiding justice of the new court of Appomattox County. He was one of the first postmasters at Bent Creek. Samuel Perkins established the post office in November 1800. Col. William Chick was the next postmaster, serving from July 1801 to July 1810. William Walton followed Col. Chick as postmaster until April 1811. According to information in the Library of Virginia, William insured his house on Main Street in Duiguidsville for $1,500.

Was one of the petitioners to the Virginia General Assembly to establish a private school in Buckingham County. He served a term as sheriff for Buckingham County. In this capacity he certified an election at Goodwin's Church precinct, April 23, 1840.

Was a successful businessman, owning a broad range of enterprises. During the 1827-1830 era, an account book shows that he was in partnership with several persons: "Clark & Walton," "Walton & Phelps," and "Walton & Lane." Earlier he was a partner of "Chick & Walton." On Oct. 4, 1828, Owans C. Fowler was reimbursed $9.64 for attending a meeting at the Charlotte County Courthouse for a hearing on the "Walton & Chick vs. Anthony W. Woodson."

The firms "Clark & Walton" and "Walton & Phelps" were mercantile businesses at Bent Creek during the 1820's and 1830's. Another business was called a plant (possibly lime), which implies manufacturing or processing of some type. According to an account book, their products were shipped to several markets, including New Orleans. William Harris was paid $30 to make a trip to New Orleans. Bent Creek is located on the James River near its intersection with U.S. Route 60. Land tax lists show he and a partner owned a tobacco warehouse; that he was co-owner of the Buckingham Gold Mine.

In 1840 he owned forty-three slaves. In 1845, when Appomattox County was formed, he was the only resident in the new county who was called Esquire on the personal property tax rolls. He owned 2,022 acres, consisting of two former estates of Walton and Chick. Sometime before 1850, he divided most of his land among his seven children. He was elected Justice of the Peace for
